

EDUCATION COURSES SUMMER'10

GREEN LITERACY FOR TEACHERS

SED SC 585

Green Literacy for Teachers offers strategies for integrating ecological perspectives throughout the middle- and secondary-school curriculum. This course will help teachers provide students with a science-based foundation in ecological issues, while reinforcing the tools and methodology needed to teach critically important themes in an engaging way.

Green Literacy for Teachers is offered with support from sedGreen, the Boston University School of Education initiative for environmentally responsible practices.

This course will examine topics such as:

- Global climate change
- Alternative energy systems
- Biodiversity
- Reduced consumption
- Recycling

Instructor

Douglas Zook

Credits

4 graduate credits

Time

9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Tuition

$2,120

Dates

July 28-August 6

Financial assistance may be available.

For more information, contact Professor Zook at dzook@bu.edu

View descriptions of School of Education summer courses at bu.edu/summer/courses, or call 617-353-5124.

